"Since we have built a strong reputation of meeting the staffing needs of our customers and forged solid business relationships, our referral network will make for a very easy and logical transition to the San Diego and Phoenix markets."

For over 25 years, Renoir's core business has been providing qualified employees for the real estate industry. "We provide a very specific service to the real estate and property management industries, by focusing on a very specific niche, and servicing that niche better than anyone we have been able to continue to grow when many other staffing companies are shrinking," says Larry Oreskes, President of Renoir Staffing. Offering convenient offices in San Diego and Arizona increases accessibility to Renoir's services. Renoir Staffing recruiters have specialized knowledge in the industry and conduct real estate skills testing, check two industry references and require seven year background checks for candidates.

"Our clients appreciate the in-depth interviews Renoir conducts to assess real estate property management knowledge, our ability to source qualified candidates and our guarantee on their satisfaction," said Williams. "Since Renoir has specialized in only the real estate industry for over 25 years, we have helped thousands of people build their careers in property management."
